

Career Snapshot

Ben Brewster is a coach with a proven record in developing youth, high school, and college players; one of the few with over a hundred wins at both the college and high school levels.

At 15 Ben could only juggle 3 times, but at 16 he could control the ball in the hundreds. This passionate focus for the game carried him to Brown University where he earned the status of All American.

Breaking through the defense...

Getting the shot off...

Ben's search for excellence and knowledge of the game took him to Europe and eventually to the US National Team, where he played two games with the squad, scoring the game-winning goal.

Ben took his love of the game and his knowledge of training to Yale University, Connecticut, and eventually to Boston College.

Settling the team at half time.

Along the way, Ben's teams became

- New England Champions,
- ECAC Champions, and
- a Top 20 national ranking with Boston College.

Ben especially transformed Boston College from a Greater Boston League team to a New England power and in the next year a national ranking and the BC Eagles first invitation to the NCAA's.

Ben was named New England Coach of the Year.

Ben also squeezed in a professional soccer career, and played with the New England Tea Men and the Boston Minute Men as part of the US's first major soccer league.

With Pele

Ben's ability to translate his playing and coaching experiences to others is underscored by his records in the states of Massachusetts and New Hampshire:

Prep school finalist and high school State Champs with New Hampton School and Souhegan High, and 6 time youth state champions with the

- Bandits,
- Greater Boston Bolts,
- Amherst Soccer Club,
- Nashua World Cup, and the
- Wildcat Soccer Club.

While founder and Director of the Wildcat Soccer School where Ben trains hundred of young boys and girls a year, Ben continues to work with individual clubs and teams, as well as continues with such national training programs as Vogelsinger.

This is Pele's home field – Santos Football Club

The Brazilian World Cup stadium: Maracana

This is where Pelé made his 1,000th goal.

For information about the Wildcat Soccer School, Ben Brewster Cup, the “Seven on Seven” summer tournament, and Soccer Farm training, go to bbsoccer.com.